

THE INHOCATE CHINESE HEGEMONY

Throughout Chinese history, china never tried to spread her way of life. In the ancient era, China developed a heaven mandate government system, based on Confucius, and they invented things called Feng shui. China has never tried to spread her mandate of heaven(originated 1000 BCE) because of the belief that there can be only one son of heaven. The catholic Rome established system in the 300 AD onward proclaiming that catholic leader is the representation of god. While Islam came after also had a caliphate in 800 AD.

China has not taken any real steps to show that they have a hegemonic vision. Therefore many profess that china is simply not interested in hegemony. China just wanted a nation with no international laws, wanted an international climate where no international laws or rules binding on them and they have their power and laws to enforce their rule by force in what it sees as its back yard .they believe that all little people are little so should follow the big brothers lead. This seems like the Chinese ‘hegemonic’ vision if you can call it that. That does not have any design for a better world, just a hard desire to be free from any restriction or outer force and international meddling

China’s army can be called as the strongest army. But one thing it completely lacks behind is vision and credibility, and even the will, it lacks in to want to better world than US. It will be sadly disappointed If it thinks it can keep together a no. Of unwilling countries into a state of global anarchy by the means of military alone. China needs to convince both rich and poor nations that it has a better, fairer and more inclusive world in mind if it has any desire to be a hegemon, or if it merely wants to break the US hold on it. China needs to convince all nations whether poor or rich that it has a plan for better and fairer and more inclus8ve world in there mind if it has a desire to be a hegemon, or it wants to break the US hold on them.

If there is any distinction between a Chinese hegemony versus an American hegemony is the value structures or the lack of, in the case of China. Fundamentally, all hegemonies wish to be capable to get away with something they want, specifically in their sphere of influence. However, with some exceptions, the American hegemony seeks to impose some modicum of consistency in phrases of cost system. This skill that there have to be some adherence to aspects such as having a participatory democracy, admire for human rights etc.

A Chinese hegemony on the different hand is not likely to pursue comparable goals. It’s about pure, historical faculty strength to do what China wants, barring interference. As lengthy as regional international locations do as per China’s bidding with regards to it’s “core interests”, China is not going to care if the stated USA is a dictatorship, democracy or monarchy. Therefore, whether or not one is higher than the difference is to be counted of perspective.

Because China is a ONE MAN SHOW simply like North Korea! China is a dictatorship even as the USA is not. Certainly, the world can no longer have confidence in a single character to make choices that contain existence and dearth of humanity on this earth to a single entity, the Chinese.

China is creating the United States of America and hasn't attained the reputation of a super electricity yet! All this speak about Chinese hegemony is simply that TALK!

China is simply a regional energy in Asia 2nd to Japan and with over 40% of China's populace surviving on much less then USD3.00/day how can they declare supper electricity status? Over 600 million Chinese live to tell the tale on USD142/month.
